TERRORISM

PRESENTING THE SO CALLED "ABB" CASE

a Norwegian case study and experience in that field

"ABB" Case is the name of the Norwegian citizen Anders Behring Brevik

Facts and thoughts of Eilif MOE, MD

October 13th, 2017

I remember April 22nd, 2011. We were coming to have a concert when the news about bomb and shooting came. Almost all thought it was a Muslim extreme terror, but were some who mention this was an extreme lonely wolf (right-extreme). This was too extreme to be Muslim extreme and so it was. He had managed to build a bomb of almost 1 ton and got hold a semi-automatic rifle and a pistol, and a police uniform (not original Norwegian).

My brother met ABB in a store where he had a racial speaking about Muslims 10 years ago. Norway is a traditional wear open country and including on the edge of being naïve about the terror.

The terror these days has gone more brutal goes against sort goals like concerts and the last years the terrorist has hijacked big cars/trucks to drive down people in the streets. But nightmare number one I think is when some terrorist get hold of some nuclear bombs from some parts of earlier USSR.

Very unofficially I've heard that Qatar paid about 1.5 billion for release of about Princes who were kidnapped by IS.

So, to ABB case:

What was the Motivation: He hated the Labour party and he had his private war.

The plan: to blow up "Stortinget" – the government building and the King's Palace, but he managet to make only one bomb.

He was very disappointed about the effect of the bomb. Only eight people killed and the building didn't collapse. So to finish his mission he drove to the Summer camp island UTØYA where he shot to dead 69 people, almost all at age 16 – 18. Short time after the bomb detonation the police sent out a national alarm to catch ABB, but unbelievable this alarm failed to be sent!

ABB after having murdered 40 people, he called the police and said he was ready to surrender. But because of the delay of the police he continued to shoot people, and 29 more died.

From the moment the shooting started it took about one hour until the police was on the place. Actually, the nearest police helicopter was in the town HØNE FOSS and a direct use of this would have shortened the time to 15 minutes.

Lessons learnt:

The police and the armed forces do not react adequately at all. The system of early warning was not worked at all. Instead of blocking the roads after the bomb attack, the police was trying to find and connect the posts for gathering more information. The result was more young people died! And the police officers on the streets were not armed at all.

But what worked well? A lot of young people began to swim from the island and people with private boats picked them up and saved them even it was dangerous.

And doctors and nurses came to help also those who were not at work. The wounded got treatment on different hospital – Ringerik, S-HOS, Ulleval. 33 were with shot wounds and one died later in Hospital.

The Jungle telegraph works – the doctors and nurses call and inform each other to help.

Another result was taking precautions in all public institutions and hospitals entering systems. Since that case it is not possible to enter any public institution without registering.

The stores, warehouses and shops, which sell different products like fertilizers fall under the special control and all their customers, should be registered as well.